MANILA, March 27.—The Americans have advanced along the line of the Dagupan railroad, driving the Filipinos there were 3,000 inhabitants. Sunday Gray Otis and Gen. Hale encamped in and that of Gen. Wheaton at Malinta.

Gen. Wheaton's brigade formed a junction with the remainder of Gen. MacArthur's division at Malinta and the two, leaving Gen. Wheaton there, marched along the railroad to New Canayan. This place was fortified and for 300 yards from it there were trenches on each side of the track. These were taken possession of by the American troops.

The movement of the Americans will be pushed in this direction.

The Filipinos, realizing that the railroad is the crucial line, have constructed row after row of trenches, running diagonally on both sides of the track at a distance of a few hundred yards apart. This work was designed most intelligently and has evidently been done under the direction of experts. It represents an enormous amount of labor. Most of the rebel positions are protected by thick earthworks, a majority of them topped with stones and provided with loopholes. Some have sheet iron roofs.

The days work of the United States troops consisted of storming the successive trenches. The Filipinos occupying them were completely hidden. The enemy poured a strong fire from every trench until they were disturbed by a flanking volley, when they would disappear into the woods and jungle, only to make a stand at the next line.

The American loss was remarkably small, seven being reported killed and 25 wounded. It is known that the Filipinos were so protected that they suffered little. No dead insurgents were found in the trenches. Forty prisoners were taken by the Americans and it is estimated that the rebels' casualties numbered 20.

The insurgents broke their guns when they were compelled to abandon

An exploded caisson at the railroad bridge proved a bar to the Americans.

Ten soldiers of the Oregon regiment, while searching for two of those killed earlier in the fighting, sneaked into the city in the morning and found the place in a condition of chaos. Monday the Washington volunteers, who held Pasig Sunday, had an engagement with a band of insurgents who drove in their outposts. In the fight the Filipinos lost several men.

Wheaton entered Malinta, which is a village of huts, at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The United States gunboat Helena and other gunboats have been shelling Malabon, about a mile northwest of Caloocan for several

The insurgents made a fierce resistance to the American advance up the railroad at Malinta. In addition to the fatal wounding of Col. Egbert, several men of the 22d infantry and several of the Oregon and Kansas regiments were killed.

Evidently anticipating a bombardment by the fleet, a thousand rebels vacated Malabon Sunday night, leaving a few to burn the town. Gen. Wheaton's brigade, composed of the 2d Oregon regiment and the 22d and 2d infantry stretched out along the railroad from Caloocan to the Tuliahan river, was powerless to prevent the withdrawal owing to the natural obstacles and to the strong opposition. A column of smoke at daybreak was the first intimation of the enemy's intention, but others followed at various points, all soon blending in a dense balloon-shaped cloud. The flames of the burning rice mills and large buildings could be plainly seen from Caloocan despite the strong sunlight.

By 11 o'clock in the morning the only building of importance not destroyed in the center of the town was a large stone church, but even at noon fresh fires were started among the The Monadnock Focused All Its Batteries native huts in the outskirts of Malabon, although the general exodus took place much earlier. Many of the rebels sought refuge in the suburbs of Navotos and Casag, or were driven inland by the shells of the Helena, Callao, Ningdapan and Laguna de Bay.

> The calculations of both Gen. Hale and Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, whose brigades constituted Gen. > Gen. Wheaton's headquarters Saturday night was a half-mile south of the river on the railroad. The opposite bank was protected by a block house and intrenchments.

Occasionally the artillery and infantry fired across the stream. Finally the engineers moved a construction train up to the bridge, the iron frame work of which remained, and began to replace the floor.

While this was going on the 2d Oregon regiment crossed the river on the left and the 22d on the right, with four companies of the 23d infantry supporting the latter regiment. A rising clear ground stretched away a distance of half a mile to Malinta, situated on its crest.

In front of the village were strong Filipino intrenchments, but no Filipinos were to be seen. Apparently they had fled. The 22d regiment approached diagonally, with Gen. Wheaton and his staff close behind, and scouts closely observing the ground,

When the Americans were within about 300 yards of the intrenchments, the Filipinos suddenly volleyed heavily. The 22d infantry, which was holding the center, suffered considerably; but, with the Oregons on the left and the Kansans on the right, in the woods, the fighting was kept up for half an hour, the 22d infantry advancing up the slope through the thick grass under the hottest fire.

Gen. Wheaton and his staff were all the time under a rain of bullets. Col. Egbert, who was in the thickest of the fighting, was shot in the abdomen. He was placed on a stretcher and an MacArthur's division is advancing upon Polo along the railroad. As the bridge is destroyed and the river can be forded the advance is temporarily checked Sunday night. In the fighting west of Malinta the Oregonians captured a Spaniard, but he denied that he was taking part in the battle. The surgeons from the fleet, and the British cruiser, Powerful, volunteered their assistance and were indefatigable in their services at the front.

MANILA, March 27 .- The Helena and the army gunboats shelled Malabon and the country beyond, while the Monadnock focussed all its batteries upon Paranque for two hours for the purpose of destroying the military stores there. A great smoke was caused, but as the insurgents are in possession of the town, the results of the shelling are not obtainable. The evacuation of Malabon was a picturesque rout, thousands of men, women and children, loaded down with household goods, fleeing to the country.

The Filipinos at 9:15 a. m. Monday burned their stronghold at Malabon and their forces fled from the city in the direction of Malolos.

of the American troops Saturday swept the insurgents back toward Malabon. Gen. Harrison Gray Otis' brigade is in front of La Loma, where there is a stretch of a mile of rough, open country. The insurgent trenches in the edge of the woods are four feet deep and furnish a good head cover. Upon this occasion the rebels adopted the American tactics of holding their fire until the attackers were about 1,000 yards distant. The rebels also fired lower than usual. The Americans fired volleys with terrible effect and then rushed forward cheering and carrying everything before them.

Once through, Gen. McArthur's division was swung to the left, driving the rebels away on all sides.

SYNOPSIS.

Minard Hendricks, great detective, just returned from Boston, finds awaiting him an unsigned typewritten letter directing him to apartments in Palace hotel, where he will find remain of Mr. Weldon Caruthers-currently reported for past two weeks to be out of town. Detective seems to connect letter with attempt made on his own life some time previous. Goes with friend, Dr. Lampkin, to investigate. Upon search of Caruthrs' apartments remains of cremated body and jeweled hand of victim are found in a vase. Hand bears marks of finger nails manicured to sharp points. Lampkin recalls reports of a row between Caruthers and Arthur Gielow, both suitors for hand of Dorothy Huntington, who is heiress to several millions should she marry Caruthers, unconditionally in case of Caruthers' death. Late that night Hendricks and Lampkin call at home of Miss Huntington. Dorothy shows detective typewritten letter, which was an invitation intentions entering the mind of Kola, rug, dragging the almost inactive doc- mercy," cried the detective. Gielow has fled. His servant, Henri, tells of overhearing confession to Bantinni. Henri thought his master insane. Hendricks, concealed in room, hears all this. Hendricks goes to consult Kola, an East Indian interested in occulresearches who had helped him in much previous detective work, and located in an old colonial mansion among the palisades. Dr. Lampkin is summoned by Hendricks, who has been shot. Bullet is removed and detective warned not to leave his room. Hendricks unknown enemy had tried to chloroform him in his sleeep. Detective had waked just in time, but was wounded by pistol shot before he could prevent his assailant's escape. Hendricks calls for a crematory employe, who confirms the supposition that ashes found were those of human body. Miss Huntington receives letter from Gielow in his own handwriting, postmarked at Charleston, S. C., tell ing of his crime and flight. Noted graphologist examines handwriting of this letter | ring they were hesitating as to what and says it is genuine. During a call on Sergt. Going up the steps, Hendricks and Lampkin found the big front door open, and as no one came to answer their course to pursue when Kola thrust his cowled head through the curtains and called out, cheerily:

"Oh, hello! Come right in, gentle-

When they went into the room in which Kola had entertained them the night before, they found the windows darkened and the same dim lights burning overhead.

"I have just got up," said the Indian, with a smile. "That performance last night took all the strength out of me. I hope I'll never have to go through that sort of thing again to convince anyone of my ability in that line."

"You won't have to, my boy," replied the detective. "But I want to have a

AUTHORS' MANUSCRIPTS.

Not Necessary For Editors to Read Them From Beginning to End.

Once more the tale goes round of the author who sent a story to three journals and had it returned by every one without having been read. He knew it because he had pasted two of the leaves together. Very likely. We do not think reading through a half or a quarter of the articles that are sent to us. It often does not take half a minute to discard what one knows he doesn't want. It is an old saying that one does not need to eat a whole joint to learn whether it is tainted.

It would be a revelation to some of one. The amount really expended for these writers to see how fast an experienced and conscientious editor can, at times, go through a big pile of essays, stories or poems. The title is often enough, and he would say, "We don't want an article on that subject." The next article begins with a page or two of commonplace introduction, and that is thrown aside in half a minute's inspection without turning more than the next page. The next begins with a platitude-"We can't print that stuff."

The first verse of this next poem has false meter and is tossed aside. The next begins in schoolgirl style, with "dove" and "love;" it is not read through. Of the next the editor reads ten lines. It is simply a dull description of a stream in a forest-not wanted. The next poem begins in a fresh way, seems to be constructed according to the rules, is pretty good. It is put one side to see if other better poems will crowd it out. The next is a story. The first page is promising, but the second shows a coarse strain, and the reading stops there.

Ten articles are decided upon, and with sufficient good judgment, in ten minutes, for a minute to a manuscript is often twice as much time as it needs. It does not take that long for a dealer to stick an iron skewer in a smoked ham, draw it out and smell of it. Not one article in a dozen perhaps needs to be read through. - New York Independ-

Guy Fawkes' Lantern.

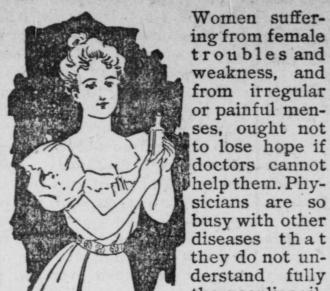

It has been settled beyond a doubt fit for it? And then that the identical lamp which Guy don't you turn away Fawkes carried in poking about in the cellar of the houses of parliament, when he intended to blow them up, is now in existence. This lantern is in the Ashmolean museum at Cambridge. Guy Fawkes was carrying this lantern when he was arrested. Children's Sleep.

Growing children cannot too carefully be enjoined to get plenty of sleep. The boy or girl who has lessons to learn must waken early after a good night's rest, and this is insured only by punctuality in retiring. Eight o'clock is a good bedtime for all young people under 15 and should be insisted upon by parents.-Harper's Bazar.

The Brick Street Question.

THE brick steet question which has been lately agitated promises to result paving of Main street from the jail to Tenth street. The question was discussed at the last meeting of the council and Mayor Perry and Councilman James O'Brien were appointed a committee to investigate the matter and report to the Council. Messrs. Perry and O'Brien will go to Lexington to-day or to-morrow to examine the brick streets in that city and to confer with the contractors and builders. They will also make an estimate of the cost of the work.

The movement will certainly meet with popular favor as there is hardly a person in Paris but that will be glad to see the street improved. Not only will reality be a most economical move. And the men who carry the improvement through will have done a great work for Paris.

Imperial spectacles and eyeglasses have perfect lenses, always perfectly centred and made of purest material, set in frames of the highest clasticity and consequently of greatest durability, united with the utmost lightness and elegance. When both frames and lenses are scientifically fitted by Dr C. H. Bowen's system they always give satisfaction for they are perfect. Never buy cheap spectacles, nor of men who do not know how to fit them. You will get poorly adjusted speciacles, or poor, imperfect lenses, and are better off without any glasses than with either of these defects. Buy imperial spectacles of a reliable, skillful dealer, and they will last longer without change and be cheapest in the end

Unlike the bero of the popular ballad, he loves to wander from his own fireside, and he is more fortunate than most fellows in the ability to indulge his wayward propensity. Most animals of our woods are extremely local in their habits. The wildcat is a tramp. It is customary for him to have two lairs, a dozen wayside haunts and perhaps as many more occasional stopping places. His two homes are frequently ten or a dozen miles apart, and mark two points on the circumference of an approximate circle which incloses his stamping

"He starts from one of his habitations on his lonely jaunt, covering in the first 24 hours five or six miles on the main line of his route, while his excursions to the right and left through thicket and swamp comprise many more miles. His route seems to be composed of ir umerable small circles and eccentric figures. When he reaches his second residence he hunts the adjacent covers until his wayward fancy again asserts itself. Then he strikes off home, which he reaches by an altogether new route, or rather a series of routes. He is not a creature of habit. Occasionally he curls himself up like a house cat and sleeps on the ground. hunting usually by night, and sometimes two weeks may elapse before he regains his starting point. Without doubt he keeps his roving up all the time, although it is only during the the winter months, when the snow holds the record of his wanderings that we can be sure of his movements For this reason, too, the winter is the only time we can hunt him scientifically. If he is disturbed by man he will pike off for the more distant home, perhaps running for eight miles in a per feetly straight line. If you can set dog upon his hot track he will take to the nearest swamp or patch of briers. and wind and twist and turn until he almost unseats the reason of the calmest and most calculating old hound that ever followed a trail. He will not take to water or resort to the other methods of obliterating his trail that a deer adopts. He simply goes around and around in the thickest brush he can find, depending all the time on mere strength of grit and endurance to win out and throw off the pestering hound. He is not afraid of the dog. but the latter bores him by his persistency and he resorts to the same measures adopted by the man who owes you ter dollars. It is very difficult to tree a wildcat. Sometimes, after being hunt ed for hours in the way I have indicated, a fresh and fast hound might make him climb a tree, but this is rare. "So I telephoned to Miles Sturtevant to come down from Hartwood the next morning to meet me. I met his wagon on the road four miles from town. We bumped our way over the turnpike to the top of Sullivan county, and then turned into the old Texas road, picking up Lew Boyd and his hound on the way. Three miles further on the Gray road strikes out to the east at right ingles. Here we dismissed the wagon, chained the bound, and walked on in the direction of Gray swamp. At the head of Gray swamp we found the tracks of a big cat pointing toward the swamp, and a few yards further on we came upon a similar track crossing the road in the opposite direction. HALF A MILLION A WEEK.

The Rate at Which the Humming Birds of South America Are Being Killed.

Dr. Robert Ridgway, ornithologist of he Smithsonian institution, says:

"Dealers have established themselves in many cities of South America for the sole object of buying and exporting humming-birds. The Indians readily learn the art of skinning and preserving, and, because of the large profits of the industry, they often traverse great distances to procure the birds. Residents of many parts of Brazil employ their servants in collecting and preparing them for European markets, and immense numbers are shipped from Rio de Janeiro, Bahia and Pernambuco. Inmates of the convents are supplied with some of the most richly colored species for the manufacture of feather flowers. Myriads of hummers are also used by the natives of Mexico in making the wonderful feather pictures for which the descendants of the Aztecs a wildcat, dead or alive. But this one jare famous, plumes of different colors being employed in place of pigments.

"By far the most effective weapon for the destruction of humming-birds is the reed blow-pipe, which the South American Indians use with perfect certainty of aim. In Brazil very fine nets are utilized to capture the birds, and sometimes they are taken by means of bird-lime, though that is apt to damage the plumage. Owing to the reckless slaughter of these little victims for ornamental purposes, certain species are already on the verge of extinction.

"This does not seem surprising when one learns that 6,000 skins of the rubyand-topaz humming-bird alone were port in a single consignment, while at a public sale of birdskins held in Lonming-birds were disposed of. In one week there were sold at auction in London 400,000 humming-birds and other birds from North and South America." - Philadelphia Saturday Post.

MISSING VACANCIES.

There Was a Box of Them and They Were Held by the Agent for Charges.

A short time since quite a discussion arose among the officials of one of our prominent southern railroads as to the reason of the many vexatious delays and troubles in the transmission of local freight. It was claimed by some of the parties interested that it was caused almost entirely by the stupidity or inefficiency of the local agents, and as there was some difference of opinion on this point, it was decided that the matter should be and formal shape, calling for the where-abouts of "One Box of Post-holes," which it alleged was missing from a prior shipment. Some 15 or 18 local agents were actually passed in this way, until the tracer fell into the hands of a bright young fellow who was accustomed to looking into the business passing through his hands, and who speedily came to the conclusion that the tracer had gone far enough. At any rate the document went speedily back to the general office with the following in-dorsement: "Box of Post-holes, as per in-closed, held at this station for local charges to amount of $2.50. Will be forwarded on receipt of same." Under this indorsement was written: "N. B.—The price of beer at this station is $2.50 per keg." It is said that the charges went forward.—Harper's Mag-

CHEAP LEGAL ADVICE.

A Man Who Believed in Paying a Lawyer for His Opinion.

The other day an old fellow slouched into Attorney Oscar Kahn's office, on Legal row, and introduced himself as Mr. Smith, Jones, Brown, or something, of a neighboring county. He said he wanted to consult a lawyer, and was accorded a seat and one of the attorney's sweetest smiles.

He then explained that while he was away from home the sheriff or some deputy had attached his wife's sewing machine and bureau for taxes. He didn't propose to tolerate such imposition, he declared, and came to Paducah to consult a lawyer about it.

"What is the amount of taxes?" inquired the lawyer. "Lemme see—a dollar and 28 cents," was

The lawyer could not conceal a smile, but bastened to say: "Well, Mr. Simth, if you want my advice, it is to go back and settle that small amount. It looks like the easiest and best way out of it." The old fellow thought a moment, and re-

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is often ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Onio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testi-

As winter passes away it leaves many people feeling weak, depressed and easily tired. This means that the blood needs attention and sensible people always take a tonic at this time of year. Purgatives are not the right medicine - they weaken instead of strengthening.

Dr. "Williams" Pink Pills for Pale People are. the best tonic medicine in the world and do not act on the bowels. They stimulate the appetite, enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and make people feel bright, active and strong.

No one is better able to speak of this fact than Miss Hazel Snider, a charming young woman of Arlington, Ind. To-day she has rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes and a plump form, which prove that she is in good health. A year ago Miss Snider was very thin, her cheeks pale, eyes sunken and dull. She was troubled with nervousness and general debility. She says

"After several months' treatment from the family physician we saw he could do no good. I was discouraged and did not know what to do. One day I read an item in a paper of the wonderful curative qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I tried the medicine, and when nearly through with the second box noticed a change for the better. After I had taken eight boxes I was cured, and have had no occasion to take any kind of medicine since. I owe much to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, probably my life, and I advise any one suffering with troubles similar to mine, to take these pills."

It goes down to the very seat of all blood diseases, and gets at the foundation of the very worst cases, and routs the poison from the system. It does not, like other remedies, dry up the poison and hide it from view temporarily, only to break forth again more violently than ever; S. S. S. forces out every trace of taint, and rids the system of it forever.

Mrs. T. W. Lee, Montgomery, Ala., writes: "Some years ago I was inoculated with poison by a nurse who infected ago I was inoculated with poison by a nurse who infected my babe with blood taint. I was covered with sores and ulcers from head to foot, and in my great extremity I prayed to die. Several prominent physicians treated me, but all to no purpose. The mercury and potash which they gave me seemed to add fuel to the awful flame which was devouring me. I was advised by friends who had seen wonderful cures made by it, to try Swift's Specific. I improved from the start, as the medicine seemed to go direct to the cause of the trouble and force the poison out. Twenty bottles cured me completely." Swift's Specific—

Obedience of Orders.

A naval commander in the reign of Queen Anne was ordered to cruise with a squadron within certain limits on the coast of Spain. Having received information that a Spanish fleet was in Vigo beyond his limits, he resolved to risk his personal responsibility for the good of his country. He accordingly attacked and defeated the Spanish fleet with uncommon gallantry. When he joined the admiral under whom he served, he was ordered under arrest, and was asked, if he did not know that by the articles of war he was liable to be shot for disobedience of orders.

He replied with great composure that he was very sensible that he was, but added, "The man who is afraid to risk his life in any way when the good of his country requires it is unworthy of a command in her majesty's service.' -Nuggets.
